DEDICATION

The yearbook staff proudly breaks tradition and dedicates the nineteen eighty-four Signum to the adults we take for granted and more-our parents! Whether married, separated, divorced, or deceased, our parents had the greatest influence upon us as we were growing up. Through the years the relationship has changed from adoring love for our parents to a more mature tie.

As children, we idolized our parents. To young children their own parents are the correct example of what a mother and father should be. If on television or in a book the family does things differently, the child often assumes that the show or book is wierd because in his or her family it is done correctly. Parents were important role models for us as youngsters.

As young children we also treated our parents as universal healers. Dad or Mom could find a solution to virtually any problem we had. Parents listened sympathetically when their youngsters complained about their unfair teacher, or cried because the big dog on the corner barked so loudly when they walked by. A few magic words would set our troubles straight and soothe our worrying. The most precious thing our parents gave us when we were young was security. Now, of course, we have formed a different kind of relationship with them. After arguments and periods of no communication, we realize that our parents do have faults, but are also strong people whom we can still run to if things are going badly. Most of us have come to realize over the past few years the courage and commitment it took to rear us. It is to those people whom we love and appreciate that we dedicate this Signum.

WE ARE THE SUM OF OUR PARTS

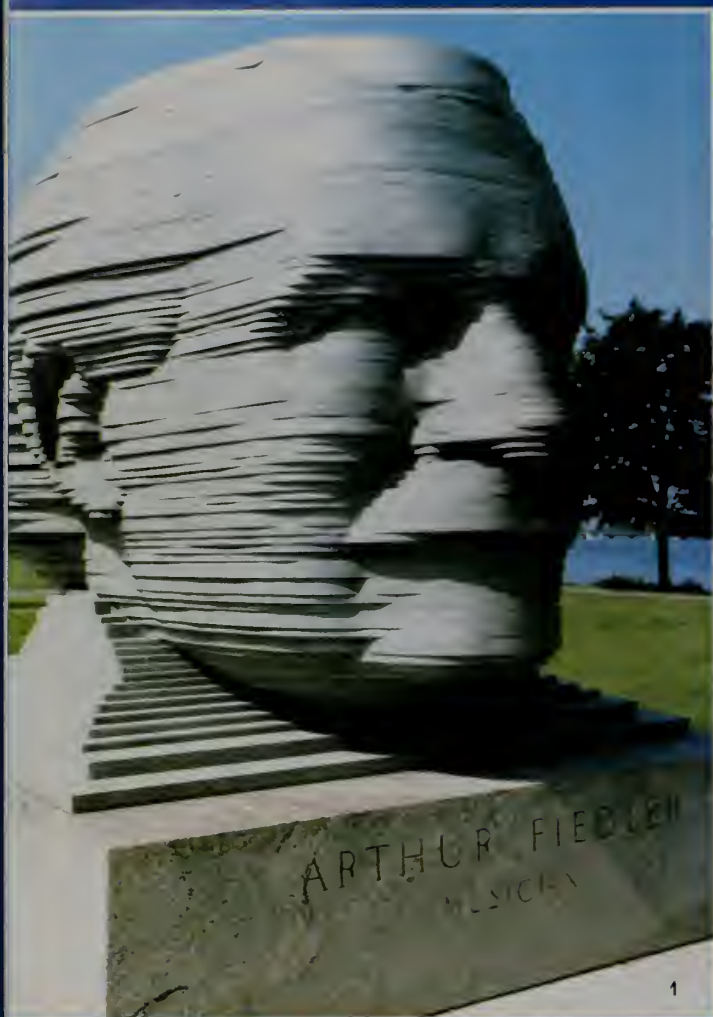

Describing Bedford High and specifically the Class of 1985 as a whole with general adjectives would be nearly impossible. A theme that really applies has to describe our differences as well as the way we compose our community. This is the dilemma that we the yearbook staff faced in the spring of 1984. Sum of the Parts was our solution.

Sum of the Parts is particularly appropriate because it can be applied to the students as individuals as well as the Bedford High population as a whole. As human beings we are made up of characteristics which are the direct result of the many influences to which each of us is subjected. But from the beginning of mankind, people have chosen to exist as one part of a group or family.

The students which have different interests and backgrounds are the parts that make up the sum, Bedford High. The most obvious ways that we are subdivided are the two sexes and the four classes. There are groups of band students and shop students as well as the many other social groups which have similar interests. While most yearbooks ignore the fact that people form different informal groups, we felt that a theme addressing this very prominent aspect of our school would be a novel, yet appropriate one. We hope that you the reader find the theme meaningful and will be able to identify with it

UR SURROUNDINGS

When the students of Bedford High are not within the walls of BHS, their lives take them in many directions. While some people remain around local spots on weekends and vacations, most students agree that one has to look beyond the boundaries of Bedford to find more exciting places.

One popular place to go is, weather permitting, the beach. Whether it's on the coast of Maine, the South shore, or Cape Cod, the beach holds a great attraction for all the teenagers of BHS. If not on the ocean, many kids spend their beach time on many of the lakes of Maine, New Hampshire, and Massachusetts, the most well known being Lake Winnepesaukee.

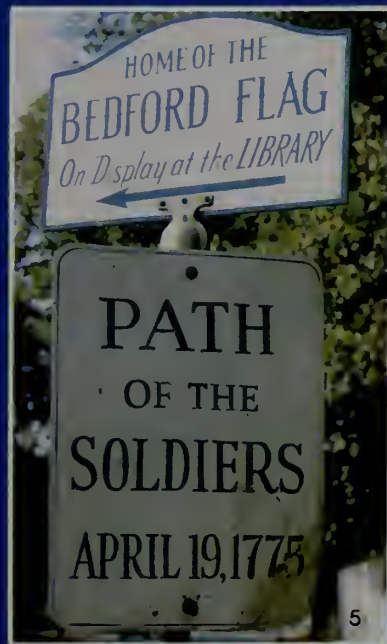

Another frequented place is of course, Boston. Quincy Market is by far the favorite place to shop, browse, and just people watch. Copley Place, which just opened in the past year, has also become a main attraction, although on a high school budget most kids just window shop.

In the winter, if you look around Bedford trying to find students of BHS, you won't be successful. Winter brings snow, and snow skiers. The slopes of Waterville Valley, Nashoba Valley, Breton Woods, and Mt. Killington are traditionally packed with herds of BHS students. Friday's classes are usually, to the teacher's consternation, class discussions dealing with where the best packed powder is going to be that weekend.

Because Bedford is not a terribly exciting town for teens and doesn't have much to keep kids entertained after school hours, these areas mentioned have become very familiar and have been the sights of happy memories for many of BHS's students.

- 1) The Esplanade presents the statue of Arthur Fiedler
- 2) Marblehead, sailing capital of Massachusetts
- 3) The stillness of Fawn Lake in the fall
- 4) Government Center - a famous meeting place
- 5) A little Bedford history
- 6) Quincy Market attracts the tourist

ELATIONSHIPS

It is said that while in high school a person knows more people on a first name basis than he will ever know again in his life. During this time in our lives we form so many relationships that it is hard to believe that later on the names, faces, and personalities will fade from our minds. One of the most important reasons for having a yearbook is to preserve the memories of these relationships for when we have been out of high school for a long time.

Obviously, the most important relationships we form in high school are the social ones among our peers. In a recent survey by the National Association of Secondary School Principals, nearly seventy-two percent of students said the reason that they liked school was because of their friends. But it would be a mistake to put these acquaintances into one heading, because one forms a different bond with each friend. Everyone has casual friends whom they really don't know too well, but have a fun time talking in class with. There are also good friends that you spend a lot of free time with and see often beyond school hours. By their senior year, most likely every member of the senior class has had a tremendous crush on some people in BHS. You certainly wouldn't like to forget those people, would you?

When we look back on our high school years at BHS, what our thoughts will dwell on the most will be the number of valuable relationships that we formed.

- 1) Jamie Harden and Brad Hamby work together as lab partners making more wax

OFF 1985

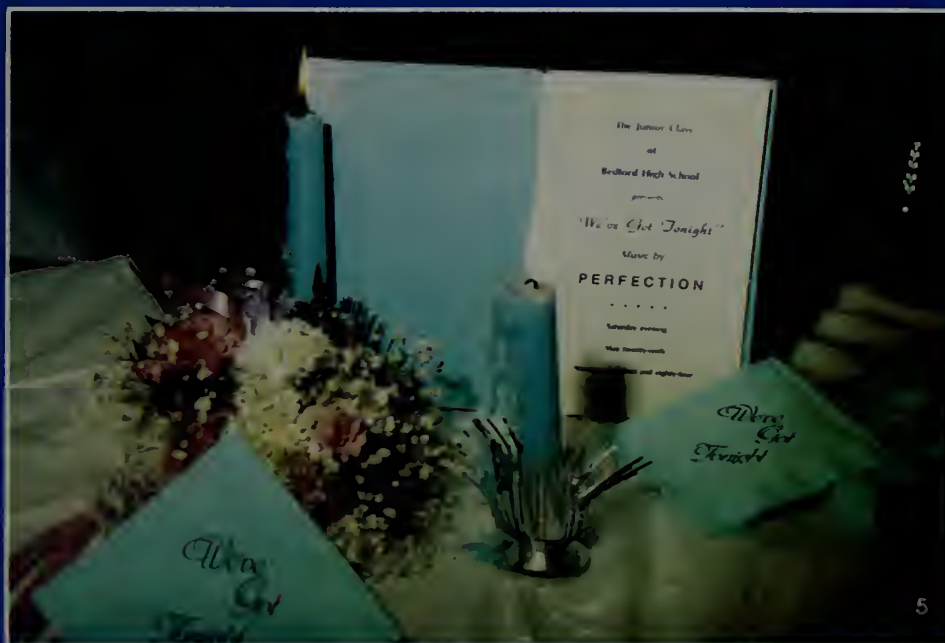

PROM

At 10 PM Friday, May 25th, numerous juniors lounged on the floor stunned at what they had created and enjoyed a new found feeling of relief. Interchanging blue and silver streamers created a dazzling night atmosphere above the silver cut out stars below. They had endured a myriad of trips for yet another box of streamers, McDonald's take outs, and various other miscellaneous items. The last minute preparations were not confined to the gym, however. As the last hems were placed on dresses, the forgotten cuff links retrieved, the dinner reservations confirmed for the fifth time, and the flowers picked up just before Arts and Flowers closed, the hopes and expectations of many juniors rose to new heights.

Parents flocked to Davidson's for extra film while last minute phone calls invaded the anxious homes across Bedford. "I can't believe we made it to today!" "You'll be here in five minutes?" "Who swiped my cummerbund?" "I bet I'll trip down the stairs." By early afternoon, the fun had begun. Couples were standing on the front lawn, by the steps, with grandma, and under the trees in different poses for their camera-happy parents. For many it was hard to believe that these were the same people they went to school with.

During a leisurely meal at one of the regular prom night spots such as Stouffer's, Cory's, Dunfey's, and the Colonial Inn, an evening shower cooled the night air. Afterward the couples ventured their way to the BHS gymnasium. From station wagons and chauffeured limousines emerged the Class of '85, all of them ready to share an evening of dancing and fun.

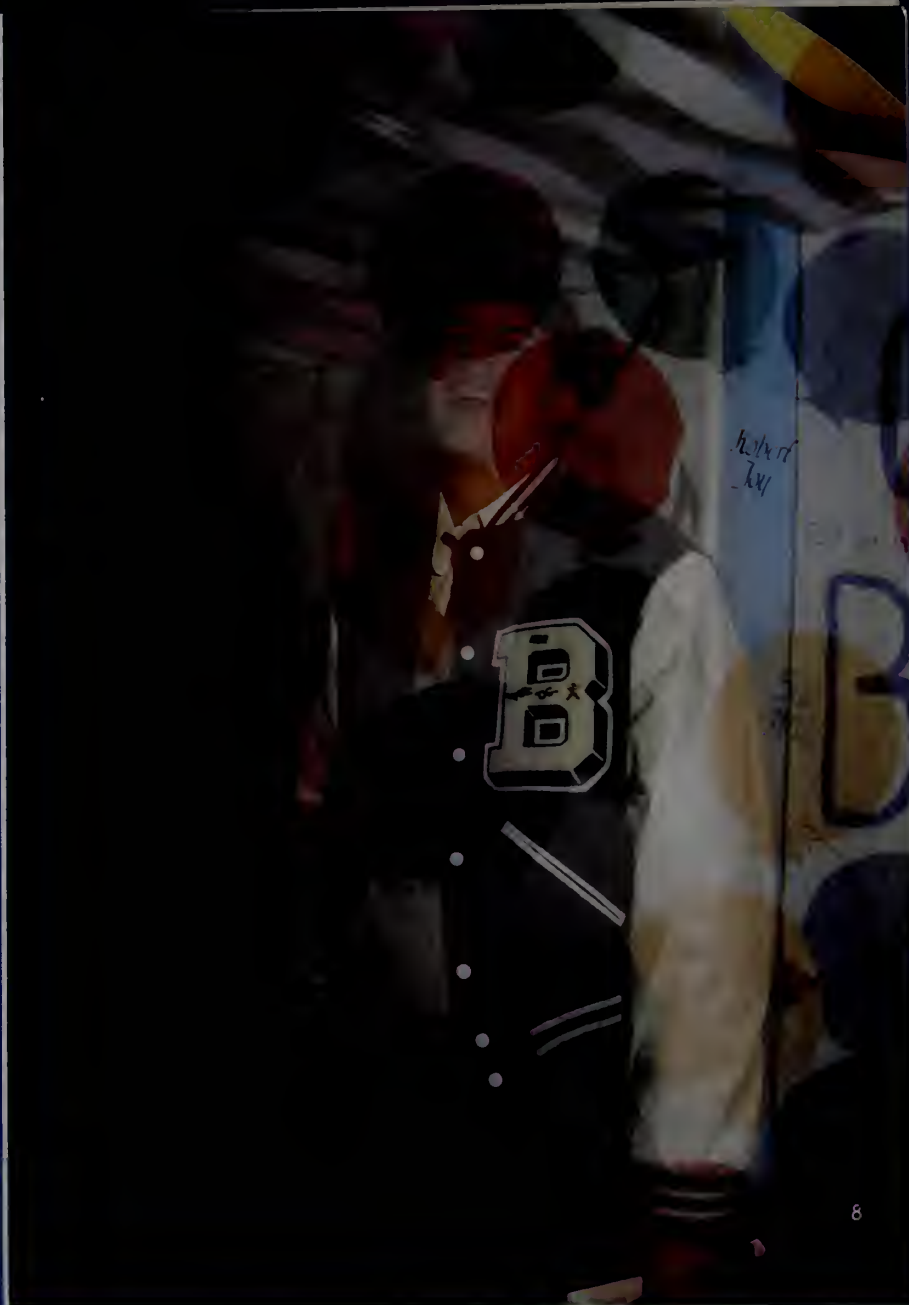

1) Dancing to the music of Perfection are Mike Hawkins and Kim Merrick
 2) Michele Rennie, Rob Jacobson, Alicia Whitney, John Belino, and Cor Grillo wait for the semi-finalists to be announced
 3) Court: Alicia Whitney, Linda Thompson, Queen Tina Colyer, King Rob Jacobson, Julia Thomas, Nancy Borrows, Scott

McArdle, Dan Concannon, Lonnie Murray, and Jim Storer
 4) Heather Drake and Chuck Samuels sitting pretty
 5) Some momentoes of the night
 6) Ken Sharkey and Tim Kelly show off their dates Tina Corey and Shannon Ericson
 7) Brendan Gaul and Wendy Gerbrands pose after arriving in style by limousine

A photograph of a stage entrance. The entrance is framed by long, light blue curtains that hang in vertical folds. Above the entrance, a yellow sun-shaped sign is suspended. The sign has a circular center with the words "FUN IN THE SUN" written in black marker. Below this, the word "Summer" is written in a cursive script. The sun has several yellow rays extending outwards. The stage floor in front of the entrance is dark and appears to be made of wooden planks. The overall lighting is somewhat dim, with the blue of the curtains being the most prominent color.

CELEBRATION OF SPIRIT

"We need more paper!" "How does this sign look?" "Where's the tape?!" One word could summarize a typical Thursday night during Spirit Week - CONFUSION!! Streamers, paper, tape, balloons, paint, scissors, and markers everywhere, people running and above all a radio's playing full-blast contributes to the mayhem. By the evening of D-day (Decorating Day), most of the class is in one hall with everybody doing something. Then someone shouts, "We only have fifteen more minutes!" Everyone scrambles over the streamers, paper scraps, paint, and tape (that by now is covering the entire floor) and tries to get the hall in some sort of order. "Only ten minutes left? Someone start cleaning!"

- the shout is hardly heard over the voices and the music. In the few minutes that are left mass hysteria takes place - the streamers on the floor and millions of tiny pieces of paper have to be picked up, the markers gathered together, and the spilled paint has to be cleaned up. The day arrives and the hall is in order spirit is in the air as the students observe the halls, and the judges judge the halls. This year the seniors held up tradition and came in first with "Senior Celebration." Juniors placed second with "Fun In The Sun." The Sophomores followed closely with "The Sophomore Space Shuttle" and the freshmen placed fourth with their theme of "The Animals of '88." But more important than the placing is the teamwork and friendships that happen when decorating the halls, and the fun of being with all your friends.

- 1) The Senior Sign-off
- 2) The Juniors celebrate their spirit with their second place hall
- 3) Seniors Marcy Goyette, Monica Sharpe and Caren Manning cheering on the Senior hall
- 4) An additional member of the Freshman Class who showed up at hall decorating
- 5) Senior Tina Collyer - the epitome of school spirit
- 6) The Seniors started off their prize-winning hall with a three foot tall cake
- 7) Darth Vader made an appearance at the Sophomore's hall.
- 8) Is that Steve Pisani?

RUE BLUE SPIRIT!

Spirit Week, which lasted from Tuesday September 25 to Friday September 28 this year, was a terrific success. A party atmosphere reigned as the students of BHS enthusiastically threw themselves into the week long celebration of school spirit. This year was especially terrific because of the great number of spirited underclassmen, as well as upperclassmen, who took the concept of spirit week with a great amount of energy and cheer.

Hat, Sock, and Tie Day began Spirit Week on Tuesday with a great show of participation. Multi-colored, mismatched socks were paired with knit, striped and fluorescent ties and the ensemble was topped by a variety of hats. On Wednesday, Costume Day, it seemed as if BHS was on a creative high. Clowns, cowboys, superheroes, and surgeons stalked the halls alongside bandits and thieves.

As usual, Punk Day on Thursday was one of the most entertaining days to walk down the halls. Everywhere you looked the halls were crowded with students who went all out with their creative talents. Multi-colored spiked hair as well as heels were abundant, combined with lots of black leather and miles of dog chains.

Blue and White Day on Friday was the culmination of all the spirit witnesses throughout the week. It was also the day in which the most people participated, especially boys because students only had to wear clothing in our school colors. The day and week was brought to an emotional finale at the rousing Pep Rally during the last period of school.

1) Sarah Robinson and Julie Kostishack smile for the camera
2) Courtney Chubb - Like my hat?
3) Denise Shafer - Come up and see me sometime!

4) Marcy Goyette and Wendy Utley participate in punk day
5) Sue Melville - Hey, I got spirit!
6) Caren Manning - Look at me!

HOMECOMING

Saturday, September 29, 1984 was a sensational autumn day for the Bedford High School Homecoming Football Game and the announcement of the 1984 Homecoming Queen and her court.

The finalists, were chosen by the Senior Class on the basis of class involvement, popularity and spirit. The thrill and excitement of the day was evident in the air as well as in the smiles on the face of each finalist. As they rounded the track, in a stunning red convertible, they were greeted by their proud escorts.

The long awaited moment came when Diana Birmingham was crowned Homecoming Queen of 1984. Despite a disappointing loss to the Lincoln-Sudbury football team that afternoon, the crowning of the Homecoming Queen was celebrated at the Homecoming Dance.

- 1) Homecoming finalists (left to right) Joanne Melville, Gina Bumann, Diana Birmingham, Linda Thompson and Monica Sharpe

SENIORS

The senior class of any high school traditionally represents the qualities of the school. The behavior and results from the Class of 1985 of BHS give our school a great image. Through many community service programs as well as town wide events, the '85 graduates have reflected the qualities that BHS has been known for throughout the years.

Although composed of many individualists, our class has become a close group; more evidence that the Class of '85 is the sum of its different parts. We have proved to be a class that believes in participation and school spirit. With high energy the senior class set an impressive example of compassion as well as determination in scholastic and community events. Hopefully, the excellent goals that were set and achieved by the senior class will be an inspiration for the the classes to come.

V VALEDICTORIAN

Why do we study relativistic mechanics? What good is a hyperbolic paraboloid going to do us ten years down the road? As we study various subjects in high school, questions such as these often infiltrate our minds. We have already been through elementary school and junior high, and now we are faced with the most difficult academic challenges of our young lives. However, the purpose of high school goes far behind the simple idea of gaining knowledge in order to succeed in the world today. High school indirectly teaches us about friendship, loyalty, leadership and self-confidence, while also giving the opportunity to participate in sports, music, and other groups that will enhance a person's character and mental satisfaction. As a result of both physical and intellectual maturation, we begin to think of the future and set long range goals for ourselves. We learn to push ourselves to our very highest level of achievement, but we also get a chance to investigate how many different ways one can spend leisure time with friends and family. This high school experience is one that signifies a first step toward achieving our goals and sets us on the path to a full life-experience.

REMEMBER WHEN . . .

Why should graduating students only be reminded of their senior year in their yearbook? Here is a look at 1985's seniors when they weren't in such a lofty social position. This diverse group of graduates is special because not only are there a smattering of foreign students and kids from Hanscom AFB, but also the students who have gone through twelve years of the Bedford school system compose the last class whose members graduated from all four grammar schools; Davis, Center, Page, and Job Lane. Therefore it took a lot of growing and maturing for the class to come together to be such an intimate group of students.

DESIDERATA

Go placidly amid the noise and haste, and remember what peace there may be in silence. As far as possible without surrender be on good terms with all persons. Speak your truth quietly and clearly; they too have their story.

Avoid loud and aggressive persons, they are vexations to the spirit. If you compare yourself with others, you may become vain and bitter; for always there will be greater and lesser persons than yourself. Enjoy your achievements as well as your plans.

Keep interested in your own career; however humble; it is a real possession in the changing fortunes of time. Exercise caution in your business affairs; for the world is full of trickery. But let many persons strive for high ideals; and everywhere life is full of heroism.

Be yourself, especially do not feign affection. Neither be cynical about love; for in the face of all aridity and disenchantment it is perennial as the grass.

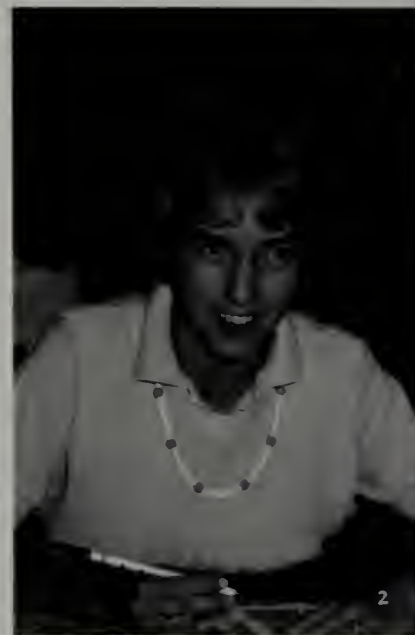

Take kindly the counsel of the years, gracefully surrendering the things of youth. Nurture strength of spirit to shield you in sudden misfortune. But do not distress yourself with imaginings. Many fears are born of fatigue and loneliness. Beyond a wholesome discipline, be gentle with yourself.

You are a child of the universe, no less than the trees and the stars; you have a right to be here. And whether or not it is clear to you, no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should.

Therefore be at peace with God, whatever you conceive him to be, and whatever your labors and aspirations, in the noisy confusion of life, keep peace with your soul.

With all its sham, drudgery, and broken dreams, it is still a beautiful world. Be careful, strive to be happy.

Found in old Saint Paul's Church, Baltimore; dated 1692.

UNDERCLASSMEN

Freshman year seems impossibly long because you are the youngest in the school and the butt of all jokes. The next year sophomore slump sets in, making grades and spirits drop consistantly. Junior year is one of confusion because students are no longer kids but not quite adults.

Even though seniors do not like to admit it, underclassmen hold the majority of the population of Bedford High School. They are also the part of BHS who put their spirit and effort into many scholastic and extracurricular activities without much credit. They brightened the atmosphere with their energy and excitement at dances and varsity games. They were also a contributing force behind the success and fun of Spirit Week and Hall Decorating. The underclassmen section of Signum has been expanded this year in order to give more credit to each class as a whole and as individuals. Their pride in BHS and considerable involvement in many events this year is evidence that the seniors will be leaving their school in good hands.

WASH AND WEAR YOUR ROCK AND ROLL

New ways of proclaiming one's loyalty to a rock band or bands have become popular during the past few years at BHS.

Concert T-shirts, which have been around for a long time, are something of a status symbol in high school. It is an accepted and necessary part of concert going to pay up to $15 for the T-shirt which depicts the group whose concert you saw. You can also tell that Bedford's students' tastes are very varied. On an average school day concert T-shirts with Rush to Rick Springfield can be seen in the halls.

Another more trendy method of demonstrating musical taste is by collecting and displaying multi-colored pins. Mostly owned by girls, these pins generally run to the lesser-known or New Wave groups. Adam Ant, Psychedelic Furs, David Bowie, and Talking Heads are more the kind of groups one can find pinned to jean jackets, coats, and purses around BHS.

EXCUSES, EXCUSES . . .

Ten minutes late for his A period chemistry class, Mike tries to slide unnoticed into his seat. Unfortunately, Mr. Palmer, whose watchful gaze doesn't miss a thing, does indeed notice his tardiness and decides to rub it in with a touch of sarcasm.

"Well, Mike," exclaims Mr. Palmer, "don't keep us in suspense. What is it this time?" Mike desperately tries to win him over with an enthusiastic smile, but soon gives it up. "Mike, we're waiting . . ."

"Well, um . . . , ya see . . . Well my truck kinda got stuck in a snowbank on the way to school this morning and I sorta had to dig it out."

"I see," says Mr. Palmer with a smug look on his face. "You must have been pretty far from Bedford considering that it's nearly 80 degrees out. Have you been hibernating this September, Mike?"

This does not phase Mike in the least. It is only one of many of his futile attempts at excusing his tardiness. Nice try, this time. At least it was original.

Especially since the stricter rules on tardiness have been enforced this year, we have just about heard them all at Bedford High. So you might as well just give it up!

All-Time Favorite Excuses for Being Late for Class:

- * I couldn't hear the bell in B-wing so the class got out late.
- * The was a huge fight in the hall and the spectators blocked the whole corridor so I couldn't get by.
- * I was late getting in from gym, so I was still changing when the bell rang.
- * There was a gigantic traffic jam in the B-wing staircase.
- * We had orchestra today and we were still putting our instruments away when the bell rang.
- * The clocks don't work in the shop, and I had to move my car.

ONCE IS NEVER ENOUGH

Women have been piercing their ears for centuries, but only in recent years has double, triple, and quadruple piercing become in vogue. And yes, more and more guys are getting into the act by adorning their ears with gold or silver studs or loops. Ear cuffs and long dangling earrings of various pieces of metal, wood, silver, gold, plastic, and rubber are the latest trend for the eighties. Why has this fad taken hold of the students of BHS? Ear dressing has probably resulted from the increasing use of earrings and ear cuffs among British and American music makers. With the great influence of MTV, the hottest fashions of these celebrities have come straight to suburban communities.

Students in the freshman or sophomore class at a secondary school or college.

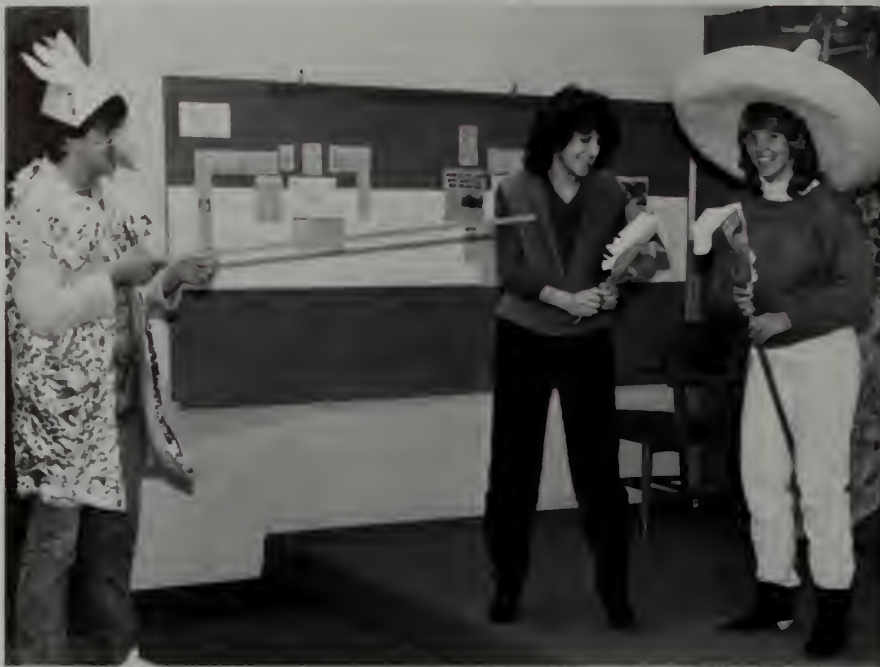

1. Young high school students with annoying tendencies to act in an obnoxious or immature manner at inappropriate times. 2. Member of the freshman, sophomore, or junior class that seniors believe will never grow up by the time they graduate. 3. Students of lower social status whom a senior is socially acceptable to speak to only with a condescending tone.

Those underclassmen should be muzzled before they embarrass us seniors.

Also- 4. Derogatory term meaning one who is acting in a foolish manner. Don't be such an underclassman!

Note: Male underclassmen are usually identified by their choice of wearing flannel shirts and construction boots every day and have a need to strut down the corridors instead of walking. Females exclusively wear pastels and pass "notes" bearing monumental news to each other. They can be identified by their high frequency giggling.

Despite these known facts about underclassmen, many freshmen, sophomores, and juniors contend that the definitions may also pertain to seniors.

Can this be SENIORS Fred Flores, Julie Tateosian, and Shannon Ericson making underclassmen of themselves?

1) Michelle Coronado, the typical Freshman.

ACADEMICS

The key part of the whole of BHS is composed of those adults who shape our environment in the high school community. This academic section centers on members of the BHS administration and faculty faculty.

BHS's administration consists of individuals who make rules and shape the high school policies. Though their presence is not always obvious to most students, their decisions and supervision are definitely felt, especially with the new changes in rules implemented in the past year. They are the people who keep the school's administrative side running smoothly.

The faculty of BHS is the other group of adults that shape our high school years. These are the people who students will remember for the rest of their lives as mentors and educators. Since education is the main point of high school, teachers often stand out in people's minds while recalling high school years. It is these two groups of adults who make up compose an important part of the sum of Bedford High.

A PRINCIPAL FOR OUR TIME

BHS students are fortunate to have Mr. Duggan as a principal. Few high school students have such a sympathetic and interested administrator who is so concerned with the students' problems.

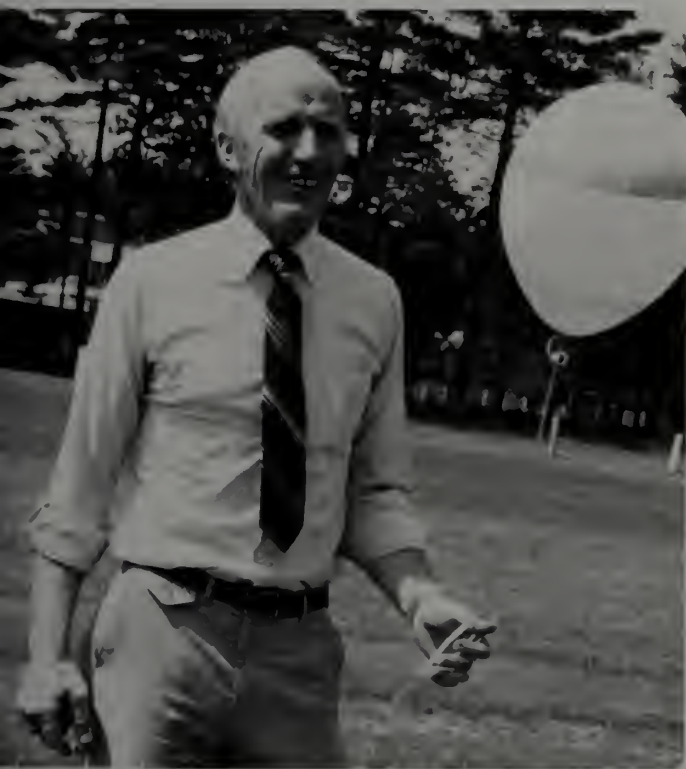

In 1978, BHS was accredited by a statewide committee, and that committee remarked on the good relationships that existed between the administration and the students. In most high schools it's likely that the principal stays in his office most of the time and rarely talks directly to the students. Mr. Duggan, on the other hand, relates to students on a personal basis by appearing to answer the students' questions on Ask The Principal and by attending many of the school's extracurricular functions. He also talks to students or disciplines them outside the cafeteria or in the halls.

Although Mr. Duggan carries a great amount of authority, he rarely has to raise his voice to enforce what he says. His discipline is very low-key, but is taken seriously by students. By using this authority in a respectful, yet effective way, he gains the respect of the students, even if they disagree with him.

This successful way of dealing with the students probably grew from his experiences in his personal life. Mr. Duggan raised five children, coached some of their athletic teams and serves on his local school committee. As a result of these experiences, he can bring understanding and experience into his job as principal of Bedford High School.

Like all of us, though, Mr. Duggan sometimes has to follow rules set by higher authorities that he doesn't particularly agree with. An example is the requirement set by the State Department of Education that orders high schools to keep students in classrooms for a full school day during mid-year and final exams. Mr. Duggan disagrees with this rule on the basis that students then have less time to study for the exams. This situation is an example of his consideration for the best deal for the students of Bedford High.

By the time seniors have spent four years in high school, they come to recognize that Mr. Duggan is not just a dominating authority figure. He has a close relationship with the students in general and is genuinely committed to the students' issues.

Mr. Duggan: A busy man.

Mr. Duggan makes an important contribution to senior class picture taking.

BITS, BYTES AND SYNTAX ERRORS

During the past few years at BHS, computers have played an increasingly important role. They have become an inherent tool in calculating grades, averages, and rank. The other aspect in which computers have grown is in the variety of computer courses offered to the students.

Whether students realize it or not, computers are what makes our schedules and report cards come out quicker. By simply punching in the grades teachers give each student, they are entered and within no time at all report cards can be printed. By tinkering around a little more, rank and academic averages "spew" out.

The change the students have noticed most is in the variety of courses in computers available. Students can take BASIC I and II as well as PASCAL I and II. By teaching more than one computer language, Bedford High is widening the technical knowledge in computers that our students have, which becomes increasingly essential concept in today's technological society.

1. Displaying the computer that decides students' fate is Mr. Ambrose.
2. Reconstructing a computer mangled by a distraught student is Boris Boruchovich.
3. Joni Montemagno lecturing on the fundamentals of computer use in the counseling office.

CONTROVERSIAL LAB PERIODS

There have been many changes in our high school the past few years due to declining enrollment. Some of these include teacher lay-offs, a decrease in the number of electives, and fewer extracurricular activities. With more students taking fewer electives, many had a lot of free periods. So the science department came up with an idea which would require an extra lab period for those students enrolled in chemistry, physics, advanced chemistry, and advanced physics. Beginning this past fall, all students in these courses have had to spend an extra forty minutes per week carrying out a lab experiment.

The science department feels that the additional lab enables the student to learn more specifics about the subjects he is studying. Instead of omitting experiments in the book due to lack of class time, the student can now do those experiments in depth, in the lab block. The lab block is also supposed to allow the teacher to concentrate more on lectures and discussions during the regular class period.

Some students, understandingly, are opposed to the program of lab periods. Because the labs are done individually and the experiments go into great detail, a student must often go for extra help after school in order to understand what he has just done. Also, if his teacher is not available that period and the experiment does not work, it has to be repeated during another free period.

Besides the students' academic gripes, just finding the time to do a lab is a problem. If a student has filled his schedule with classes, he must go to school at 7:00 AM or stay after one day a week. This might not seem like a big problem, but some after-school activities require participation every day.

The students, in general, feel that the implementation of lab periods dampens enthusiasm because of the increase in the amount of work instead of advancing the students' understanding of the subject. Also, students are forced to spend nearly double their usual homework time for a subject on science because the calculations and conclusions cannot be done in the lab periods or class periods.

A WOMAN WHO LOVES HER WORK

Miss Gfroerer, who has been at BHS since its beginning, is undoubtedly one of the student's favorite teachers. Besides having most of the seniors for Physical Education, she also coaches cheerleading as well as varsity field hockey and girls' varsity softball. Because of all this contact with students, by senior year she knows most members of the class on a first-name basis. Her obvious affection for her students is what makes her a favorite teacher.

It would be obvious to anyone observing one of her physical education classes that Miss G has a good relationship with her students. She can good-naturedly bully or cajole even the laziest student into running laps or shooting baskets for her. Students respond to her because they can feel that she enjoys working with high school-age students.

Girls on the teams that Miss G coaches admire her for her fairness and determination. She is a tough coach to have, but by working hard together her teams feel a real unity and show strength on the field. Miss G's enthusiasm and confidence is reflected in the great spirit that the cheerleaders consistently show. Thanks to Miss G's coaching, the girls softball team does well traditionally every year. Although field hockey is sometimes a weak point at BHS, the team has always shown great spirit and will to win.

In conclusion, Miss G is one of the rare teachers who can really relate to her students, yet still remain a respected disciplinary figure.

MIND BOGGLING AND BARBARIC

The time is 11:30 p.m. and Mary lays her head on the book which for the past four hours has become her bible. Tomorrow she'll be taking a mid-term exam. "I'm never going to make it!" Paul exclaims as he watches the minutes tick by before the inevitable moment arrives. In a few hours he will also be taking a mid-term. These are two examples of possible scenarios that face the BHS student at the end of January. At this time mid-term exams are the bane of every student at BHS including the seniors. However seniors do have the pleasing knowledge that the tests could very well be their last major exams in high school.

During the January testing dates haggard students can be seen wandering around the school in a daze. Hours of studying, pressure and stress bring about a stupor that rivals any other possible. Moreover this year students did not have the luxury of half days to gain some precious study time at home or alone. Some students however choose not to study for their exams. But of course this is true with all tests throughout the year. There are always those who spend hours preparing and those who take only a few minutes to cram.

A final scenario: Mrs. Armstrong sits at her desk which is covered with four dozen mid-term exams. "I'll never make it!"

1. Riye Yukawa practicing the long lost art of hair-pulling.
2. Rob Kelnhofer just loves all this studying.
3. Julie Tateosian joyfully preparing for a most exciting mid-term.

THOSE INFAMOUS BOOKS OF TORTURE

When students think back to the books they studied at BHS, they will undoubtedly focus on the works of William Shakespeare. However, we wouldn't want the Class of '85 to forget those other undecipherable books, now would we? By the end of high school most of the BHS graduates will have been forced to study the cruelest books our teachers could find. They are considered devious and infinitely more confusing than the works of Willie S. for the simple reason that they are written in modern English, but are incomprehensible to the average student without the aid of Cliff Notes.

Starting out in freshman year, students can't really believe the teacher assigned The Old Man and the Sea and The Pearl. This is challenging reading? You thought it was about an old man who catches a fish and a young man who finds a pearl. It wasn't. Both are full of secret symbolism and deep meaning. As a freshman you are certainly glad they told you this because you never would have guessed.

The book sophomores remember with the most confusion is Rhinoceros by Ionesco. This is a play about French people turning into - you guessed it - rhinoceri. This book you realize must have a deep meaning because on the surface it makes virtually no sense at all.

Junior year is definitely when English teachers really become sadistic. Juniors are just pondering the actual plots and meanings of Red Badge of Courage and The Crucible when they are slapped in the face by The Scarlet Letter. When the dazed students at last understand the plot, the tedious, deep discussions of the intense guilt, evil, and innocence drone on and in. Fortunately, many juniors have been known to black out during such discussions, relieving the torture for at least short periods of time.

In their senior year, students at BHS have a choice of English courses. It would be too lengthy to describe the hardest books in each and for that reason none are mentioned here. However, the result after four years of torture in English courses is that a few poor students who have broken under pressure and are no longer in command of their senses enroll in British Writers. Luckily, this only happens in extreme cases.

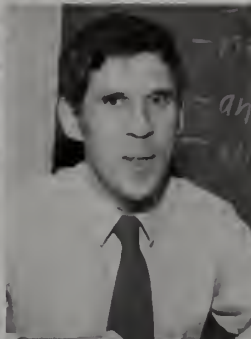

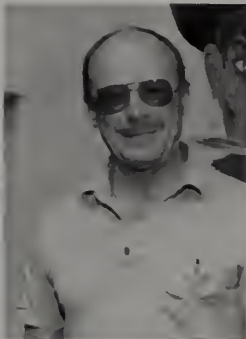

1. Nate Sears and Jason Courtney discuss some deep and meaningful literary material.

2. The torture books: The Scarlet Letter, Rhinoceros, MacBeth, The Red Badge of Courage, The Pearl, The Old Man and the Sea, and The Crucible.

OUT ON THE TOWN

The high points among a student's dreary academic life are field trip days. What is actually going to be seen, no matter how infinitely boring, has got to be better than being cooped up in classes all day long. Cost is no object, either, if it means an excused absence from seven classes.

There are certain field trips which have become Bedford High tradition. Notorious for good fun are the social studies trips, such as Mr. Reynolds trip to Newport, R.I., and Mrs. Ralston's trip to Quincy Market for "human observation."

Field trips provide a day long break from school which many students cannot resist. The funny thing is, while most students regard field trips as hack, most teachers expect it to be a learning experience, which usually it is (but it doesn't seem like it). Another inconsistency is that teachers of the classes you missed actually excuse the absence as if it were a regular illness; you still have to make-up the work, but you don't get downgraded. It's like an absence you don't have to be sick for.

Of course, there is only one major draw-back to field trips. There's nothing worse than returning to school at the end of a relaxing day and being told: "Ok, kids, back to G period class!"

- Mr. Patuleia caught in the act.
- On leave math teacher, Mrs. Miele, with a new arrival.
- Kellie Pease, Kim Travers, and Roberta Branca during a moment of free time at the Custom House.
- A picture worth a thousand words.
- Sean Hurley, while on a field trip to Paris, carefully examined this truck.

A CLASS THAT TEACHES ALL WHO TAKE IT

Former students who have taken early childhood education affirm that it is an experience one will never forget. After having a long, hard day in other classes, going into the nursery just relieves you from all the tensions and stress. Being a student aide in a nursery brings you back to your own childhood when you were playing in the sandbox, and playing Duck, Duck Goose. Then you start to question yourself, "Did I really act like this when I was four years old?"

This class is so different from all others because you share your warmth and love with younger children rather than your peers. It's a great feeling to get the opportunity to help children who, because of their young age, are not capable of accomplishing half the things you can. The children rely on the student aides to be their role models. So the aide must always remember to show his best example in leading the children.

Going into the nursery every week is a growing experience for the student aide and the child. The student aide gains a knowledge on how the child reacts during the different ages, the child learns all sorts of skills to be more prepared for the world and both the student aide and the child share a respect and love for one another. The nursery is a wonderful place where you can gain many friends who are always ready with warm, huggable welcomes.

DEFINITELY NOT AN "AVERAGE" SCHOOL TEACHER

Among the many teachers in the high school, there is one who is special to all those who have taken JROTC. SMSGT Peters has been an instructor at Bedford High School for five years. He is dedicated to his job and can often be found on Saturdays working with the Drill Team, Color Guard or in some other facet of the JROTC program. As the leadership instructor, "Sarge" has made an impact on each one of his students. If students don't realize what Sarge is trying to get across when in his class they usually come back in one or two years and say that his classes have helped out a lot in college.

Sergeant Peters has had a colorful life that includes joining the army to be an aerial photographer and then finding himself working on airplanes in the pre-Air Force years. He went thru everything from World War II to teaching at both German and Burlington high schools. These vast experiences are demonstrated in Sarge's stories to his students about anything from war to taking pictures of girls on the beach. Whatever the story or its importance, Sergeant Peters will sorely be missed when he retires at the end of this year because he teaches his students about something special. Real life.

SPORTS

Achievements in sports have always been a main goal for students at Bedford High. Because of our setting in a small suburban town, sports have become the main activity of BHS students after school hours. Our athletes may have losing seasons among the winning ones, but they have built up a reputation of strong determination as well as stubbornness in the face of defeat. It is their attitude that makes them special.

As most athletes at BHS have discovered, each year a team creates its own personality. The camaraderie that exists on a team serves as a growth experience for students. Junior varsity is just as important as varsity in this respect. A team's unity off the field strengthens its overall performance in competition strong ties result from the necessary trust and support among teammates with this unique relationship plus great coaching and support from the student body, BHS's athletes reflect an attitude of optimism and good sportsmanship.

AGILE, HOSTILE AND MOBILE

The 1984 boys' varsity football team ended their season with a 3-7-0 record. The Bucs unfortunately played in a very tough Dual County League which saw four of its seven teams ranked within the top ten in Division III. Despite being up against formidable competition, Bedford played hard-nosed, aggressive football that gained the respect of all its opponents.

Quarterback McArdle led a potent backfield of John Bellino, junior fullback Eric Isnor, and sophomore standout Herman Rice. The passing attack was headed up by split-ends Ennis and slotbacks Benson and junior Tony Young as well as Papalia and Duda. The defense was led by the linework of juniors Dave O'Neil, Mike DeMattio, and Bruce Park as well as Hawkins, Peucker and Gillis. Sophomore Keith Tassinari led the linebacking corps; the defensive backfield was solid. Despite a disappointing loss to Concord on Thanksgiving, Bedford had a successful season in which they consistently played hard and never surrendered anything.

In a sport ruled by wins and losses, Bedford succeeded on a different level as compared to some of the other DCL teams with better records. Bedford players learned thanks to a dedicated, special coaching staff of Mr. Sabourin, Mr. Petrillo, and Lt. Col Campbell; that winning is important, but more important is the effort and strength of character needed to strive for a win. "Champions are made in practice."

EXCELLENCE IN MOTION

When the soccer team hits the field this past fall, one couldn't expect anything less than excitement. The 1984 squad continued the high level of excellence that BHS has worked so hard for over the years. Again the Bucs qualified for the states, making it the fourth time in six years that the Netmen have qualified, and the third year that the Bucs went all the way to the Division II North Sectional finals. This year, the Bucs season terminated in the sectional final, when they lost a close battle to Masconomet, the same team that eliminated Bedford from the tournament last year. Overall, Bedford had a 13-6-1 record ranking third in DCL, the most competitive league in Eastern Massachusetts.

Led by Rob Kelnhofer, the Buccaneer defense was a dominant force. The big "D" held their opposition scoreless for the first three playoff games, before being scored upon by Masconomet. Goalie Jim Storer had another excellent year with ten shut-outs, giving him sixteen for his two year stint on varsity.

The offense broke school records: most goals scored in a season (50) and most goals scored in a game (9). The offense was led by junior Neil Amidon, who was the leading scorer in the DCL and Sean Hurley, who was third leading scorer.

GETTING THEIR KICKS

Under the direction of a new coach, Dave Wilson, and tri-captains Julie Shea, Kerry McGovern, and Wendy Gerbrands, the girls' soccer team worked hard to continue its tradition of determination and dedication. Despite finishing the season with a 4-9-1 record, the Bucs played exceptionally well and showed their nemeses, Concord-Carlisle and Lincoln-Sudbury, that they could not walk away with easy wins. This was an outstanding accomplishment for the girls as the team was made up of a majority of juniors and freshman unfamiliar with the D.C.L. Many coaches noted the Buc's improvement, Concord's saying that next year he would have to look out for them. Since they are graduating only 3 seniors the team will retain a solid foundation of athletic, well-skilled players.

Several players ended the year with awards. Freshman Kim Alcaide and junior Kerry McGovern played on the D.C.L. All Star Team. Junior Kristin Dougherty received the High Scorer's Award. While senior Wendy Geerbrands received the Bob Gillis Memorial Award.

PLAYING THE FIELD

The varsity field hockey team this season was made up of four sophomores, five juniors, and dominated by the presence of ten seniors. Although their record is not made up of many victories, Miss G. is often quoted as saying, they gave their opponents a "run for their money." One of the most exciting games of the season was against Acton-Boxboro. For the second year in a row, Bedford was the only team to score on Acton's impenetrable goalie. Acton-Boxboro finished its season second in the state. The game ended with a score of 2-1. Fullback-captain Christine McGovern scored the single goal.

Bedford is known throughout the DCL as having a strong defensive line. The backbone of the defense consisted of three Dual County League All-Stars: fullbacks Christine McGovern and Mary-Ellen Colliton, and Goalie Mary-Beth Conway. Although only these three made the All-Star team, the whole starting defense was nominated.

RUNNING THE DISTANCE

The 1984 Girls' Cross Country team was a very dedicated group of athletes. Despite their record of one win and six losses, they did have some excellent individual talent. Their record can be attributed to their small team, because they only had seven members. The seniors and co-captains of the team were Gina Bumann and Pamela Wingood. Between these two runners there are seven years of combined cross-country experience. The juniors on the team were Yael Kupiec, Susanne Melville and Lori Acree. Next year they will be strong contenders in the Dual County League. Two newcomers on the squad were sophomore Terry Poole and freshman Tamar Kupiec. With increased experience and strength, they will become even more promising.

The season was capped by several excellent performances in the All-League Meet held at Lincoln-Sudbury. The team's top runner, Gina Bumann, improved her time by over half a minute. Coming in second, Sue Melville was followed by Lori Acree. The next finishers were Pamela Wingood, Terry Poole, and Tamar Kupiec. Unfortunately, Yael Kupiec, due to an injury, could not participate. Most of the girls significantly bettered their times this season. This accomplishment is due to coach Keup, manager Lynne Carroll, and of course the girls' hard training.

DCL CHAMPS

The 1984 cross-country team was unified and planned to use this season to rebuild. The Harriers worked hard to change an expected 4-3 record to an 8-1 overall. This team wasn't good because of individual talent, it was from teamwork that they earned the D.C.L. crown.

Highlights of the season were the outstanding coaching job by Jake "Reebok" Sullivan. Sole senior Doug Blair placed first against Weston to open the season. Junior Brad Hamby won a meet against Hudson Catholic by breaking their course record. Both Brad and Doug were medalists at the State Coaches Invitational meet. Juniors Mike Callender and Greg Swider had excellent seasons and improved greatly as the season progressed. Freshman Bobby Hanley won a plaque in the State Coaches' Meet freshman race, and was the first freshman to run on the varsity team.

The Harriers expect a continuation of this success next year, as only one runner is graduating. They know the hard work that brought them victory this year can be intensified next year.

STREAMLINE SUITS

Although the boys' swim team did not have one of the best records, the never ending spirit of the squad shone through in every meet. Despite being in the toughest league, they were never discouraged from having a good time.

Furthermore, the team was not without individual superstars. Leading the attack was senior captain Al Kenney in freestyle and butterfly races. His overall record combined into an impressive eighteen first and two second place finishes. Also Freshman Ron Armstrong excelled in breast-stroke and individual medley. Both swimmers would often combine to lead a relay team to victory, and each qualified for the state championships. In diving Jeff Eagles sparkled, taking first in the DCL and placing in the top ten in the states. In fact, Jeff, a Junior Olympian, is one of the foremost divers in his age group.

The team of twelve had a great time thanks to coach Sandy Maczko.

BATHING BEAUTES

This year's girls' swim team was one of the youngest in recent years. With only four seniors, the team relied heavily on the freshmen and sophomores. After a good start, the girls began to face tougher competition, being in the powerful Dual County League. The zenith of the season came during the last meet at Wayland, a long time rival of Bedford. Led by senior co-captains Holly Corcoran and Julia Thomas along with junior captain Jenny Maxon, the team gave Wayland a tough fight, but came up short by one point.

Courtney Chubb was a backbone in the team winning the 200 and 500 freestyle and 100 butterfly in every meet. The team could also count on a strong performance by Karen Hill in the 100 breaststroke.

Overall, the season was a successful one, with several members being named Dual County All Stars as well as Courtney Chubb being named Globe All Star.

JUMP, SHOUT, BOOGIE

Throughout the football and basketball season, the cheerleaders have supported and cheered the team on. They prepare for the seasons over the summers by attending cheerleading camp, learning new cheers, stunts, and drills. With practice everyday, the girls work on synchronizing their moves to the beat of their chants. They try to get the players psyched up by giving them bags of food and candy during homeroom and before games. The captains Patty Ahern and Shannon Ericson, along with Coach Miss "G" and the Superband, psych the crowd at each game. Although it is hard work, they always have fun.

The Girls Soccer/Hockey cheerleaders emulate the meaning of spirit. Always cheering with the crowd or leading them in a cheer, the girls add zest to the sidelines. The team, led by co-captains Julie Tateosian and Monica Sharpe, along with the help of their coach Mrs. Gullage and the Pep Band, cheered the boy's soccer team into the Division II finals. All in all the girls discovered new friends, and enjoyed themselves in both practice and at games.

SHOOTING UP A STORM

Nineteen eighty-five proved to be a rebuilding year for the rifle team as only five members returned from the previous season. Led by Coach Fichera, the team shot its way through the competition with strong performances from captain Chris Shaw, Steve Pisani, Brian Snelson, Matt Urquhart, Chris Clemons, Bob Huffman, and Chris Hawley. Strong support was also given by John Pecora, Bernie Snee, and Greg Pike.

Although the season record was not as high as the team would have liked, their intense practice and concentration paid off as the team's scores steadily increased throughout the season. Team spirit was high, and their attitude made every match an exciting competition. At their rate of improvement, this team will be really hot next year, so watch out for them!

PUTTS THEIR PLEASURE

The incredibly warm weather this fall helped make the change from spring to fall golf an easy one. Captain Fred Flores had an outstanding season as an individual performer, but could not pull the team beyond a 2 and 9 record for the year. Many rookie participants this year made it look like a scene from "Caddyshack" at times, but performances and high spirits provided the catalysts for sound improvement for all players throughout the season. Coach Reynolds is looking forward to a much improved season next year.

SHOOTING STARS

The girls varsity basketball team started the season with nothing but negative comments. They were called "the team that did not have a chance" and "the underdogs."

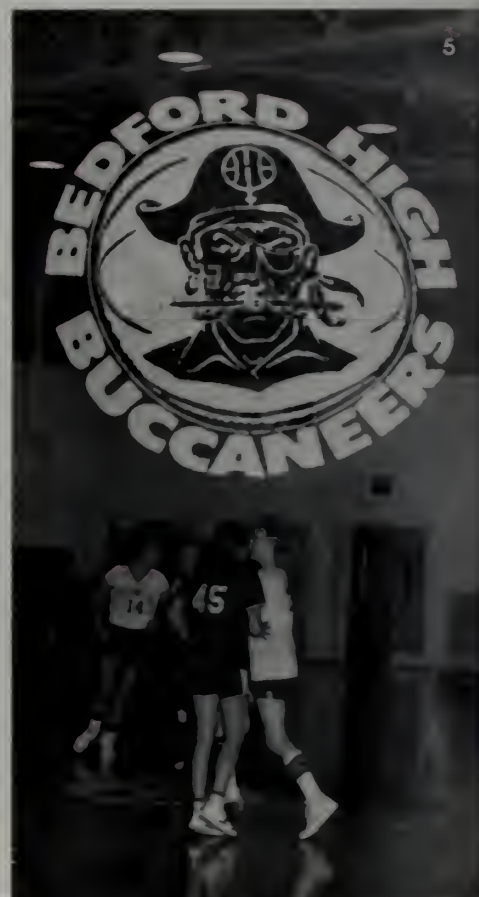

Loosing five seniors and having only three return, Gina Bumann, Christine McGovern, and Vera Kostori, with two returning lettermen, Kerry McGovern and Kristen Dougherty, those labels seemed true; but the girls and coach Patuleia did not give up. The starters, captains Gina

"Boo" Bumann and Christine "Mac" McGovern, all-stars Kerry "ET" McGovern, Kristen Dougherty, and Jen Dyson rattled every opponent. When the starters got into foul trouble the reserve players, Lucy McGovern, Vera Kostori, Jen Maxon, Michele Gonzales and Kim Alcaide came out with just as much fire and skill. The team that could not win did! The biggest win, at press time, for the lady Buccaneers this year was their win over Acton-Boxboro at Acton, the first time.

ON THE REBOUND

Considering their depleted ranks, the 1985 Varsity Boys' Basketball team had a better-than-respectable season. Playing at times with as few as six healthy players, the team had upset victories over Concord, Burlington, and Weston. Senior Captain Sean Ennis and senior Chip Ellis were nominated for the DCL All-Star team. The Bucs were led by their charismatic and energetic coach, as well as captains Ennis and Tom Maskalenko. Other members of the team include seniors John Spencer and Todd Brunner, and juniors Mark Alcaide and Scott Smith. The season was truly a series of peaks and valleys, but the team provided some outstanding excitement for the home crowds.

SOLID AND AGGRESSIVE

The 1984-'85 Buccaneer hockey team may not have topped the DCL this year, but coached by Mark Lane and Bob McGrath, our team sure did fight hard.

Consisting of nine seniors, the team will be a tough act to follow next year. Star center and co-captain Jim "Jimmy O" O'Shaugnessy led the Bucs with his twenty plus goals and skillful puck control. Always at O'Shaugnessy's side was wing Jim Storer whose aggressiveness and speed helped assist and score many goals. Also, exemplifying the importance of playing a solid offensive as well as defensive game was fellow wing/center Chris Manning.

On defense, Tim Peucker was commonly seen introducing opponents to the boards. His defensive skill kept many pucks and players out of Bedford's end of the ice. Mike Fitzgerald and his "bone-crushing checks" also aided Peucker's cause. Furthermore, defenseman and co-captain John McKenna held on to a never surrender spirit and his talented play helped keep the Bucs near the top of the DCL for most of the season.

Although the '84-'85 Buccaneer hockey team could not outshine all others in the Dual County League this year, they proved that they can play solid, aggressive hockey.

UP AND RUNNING

The 1984-85 winter track team had its share of victory and disappointment, mostly victory. They breezed through the first four meets with a winning streak that surpassed everyone's expectations. They rivaled with the best athletes in the state at the State Coaches Meet in Harvard, the B.U. Relays and the State Meet. The Bedford team gave Lincoln-Sudbury and Wayland quite a scare, losing to both teams by a small margin. Just surviving some of coach DeCapua's and ex-coach Sullivan's imaginative workouts is an accomplishment in itself.

On the average, at least 70% of the team scored at every meet. Each individual was valuable to the team; nevertheless, there are some athletes whose outstanding performances are worth mentioning. Sean Hurley has the '84-85 DCL indoor record in the 1000 (2:21) and placed third in the State Coaches Meet (2:16.6). Neil Amidon has the DCL '84-85 best times in the 300 (33.7) and the 600 (1:16.8). Dave O'Neil threw the DCL '84-85 record shotput distance of 44'4.5'.

A STRONG EFFORT

The 1984-85 girls' gymnastics team was one filled with excitement and achievement. The highlight of the season was a stunning victory over the Billerica Indians. Co-captains Brenda Sayles and Jeannette Moreau supported the team with some very high individual scores. The Bedford attack was bolstered by strong efforts by Amy Puffer, Christine Martell, Veronica Welch, Josie Rodriguez, and Renata Pomponi. The team consisted of many high potential underclassmen who will be a major contributing factor in the success of future seasons. The art of gymnastics requires individual strength, determination, and patience; qualities the '84-'85 team exhibited in both practice and performance. The girls finished the season with a 9-1 record.

CONQUERING THE SLOPES

This year the Bedford High ski team proved to have a very exciting season. The skiers improved tremendously and the team had many outstanding individuals. Coached by Helen Folweiler and Dale Wilson, the team worked hard all winter.

The ski team is divided into two "sub" teams, downhill and cross-country. The skiers have a choice of racing either one of these, or both. Most of the downhill skiers race in both because in order to earn a varsity letter, they must compete in one cross-country race. This rule was made last year because there were few cross-country racers and the team could not fill the required ten spots needed for a race.

The boys cross-country team was led by Doug Elder who gave the other towns very tough competition with his great skiing ability. Leading the girls team was Robin Folweiler. With her great strength and speed, Folweiler was one of the top skiers among the towns.

The downhill team had a good year also. Senior captain Barry Yaceshyn was the boys leader. Maintaining tremendous speed and control on the slopes, Yaceshyn placed well in the overall standings. Tina Collyer, also a senior captain, skied her personal best this season and also placed well overall.

The managers, Becky O'Donnell, Heidi Urquhart, and Jean McKie kept the team running smoothly. They stood outside in freezing temperatures for over two hours while they recorded times for both downhill and cross-country skiers. They also organized the bibs and helped the coaches tremendously.

MORE THAN COLLEAGUES

This past fall, the Boy's Cross-Country Team earned the title of Dual County League Champions. On account of this, they are in the spotlight. All of them are dedicated runners who work hard with the coaching of Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan. A multifaceted bond makes the relationship between the team and the Sullivans very special.

Unlike most coaches, the Sullivans participate in all the training exercises which the student runners work through in practice. Both Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan compete for the Reebok National Racing Team and therefore, appreciate the necessity of consistent training. They run alongside the harriers and engage both in supportive conversation and the "inside" team jokes (the runners have a great sense of humor). More than a competitive spirit, the Sullivans encourage a cooperative spirit among the runners. In addition, the team knows that Mr. Sullivan and Mrs. Sullivan themselves are being coached, so they are assured of updated, efficient practices. "Jake is a model coach, not a dictator." Moreover, the Sullivans are available and supportive whenever someone needs help.

The cross-country team has unique cohesion. Since cross-country is not publicized in the headlines, the participants recognize each others talents and depend on support from their peers. They share aspirations and goals to better themselves; running is a connection between them. An example of the strong bond of the harriers becomes evident at the alumni meeting. Graduates dating back to the mid-70's, some of whom are married, come to run and stay in touch with the enjoyment they experienced at Bedford High. Furthermore, graduates, while on break, join team practices. The senior members of the team "talk up" involvement in running as a sport. They have found that the more effort and time they put into training, the more rewards they experience from running. The sport of running is unique in the sense that athletes can work towards individual goals as well as those of the team. According to Mr. Sullivan, the cross-country team works as a "system". Each member is a valuable part of the working whole. If one part does not work up to par, then the system suffers. The runners seem to sense this, for they are always pushing forward to achieve better times.

The Sullivans not only relate to the team on a coach/athlete level, they also relate to them intellectually in the classroom, personally as they share interests, and philosophically by sharing ideas related to running. Influenced by his high school coach, Mr. Sullivan feels that cross-country is a cooperative team venture. Coach and athlete must be motivated, committed, and willing to take initiative. No one has natural endurance; it must be developed.

The combination of personal motivation, team spirit and peer support nurtures the cross-country team. Congratulations to the outstanding student athletes and Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan, who, through dedication, have brought another respectable crown to BHS.

STUDENT LIFE

When students look back at their years at Bedford High, let's hope they remember not just the people, but the social activities in which they participated. As education is only a part of students' lives, this section will help alumni to remember the fun and interesting activities that they had a part in.

Because of the number of diverse groups in the high school, the clubs and organizations featured in this section are both scholastic and extracurricular. It is just another example of BHS as a sum of its many different parts, just as we students are consumed with many different interests.

It is encouraging to note that although the size of each consecutive class of BHS is becoming smaller, our students still prove to be an enthusiastic and participating community. Presented here are the many diverse interests that BHS students have kept alive with their willingness to be involved.

RAISE YOUR VOICE!

The choir is a distinguished group of fifty-nine of Bedford High Schools' male and female voices. They perform three times during the year: at the POMS fall and spring dinner/concert, and in December at the Holiday concert. Of course, the highlight of the year is participating in the annual spring musical comedy, "Oklahoma!"

The next largest singing group in the high school is the Girl's Ensemble. Made up of forty-two female voices, the ensemble sings at the Holiday and spring concerts. Both groups are under the direction of Keith L. Phinney.

Leadership and responsibility are experienced by several students during their high school career in various groups, sports, and organizations. This fact holds true even in the music department where students are section leaders, and student directors. One of these directors is Sarah Robinson who has conducted the Double Sextette for the past two years. Sarah offers to the group her experience as a talented singer, as well as her knowledge of music. As the conductor of sixteen girls, Sarah often faces the task of teaching them the rhythm and the notes of each selection. The Double Sextette can always count on Sarah to keep up the high standards that the group is known for and is a good example of what one looks for in a student leader. Although the girls' practices are few, a lot must be accomplished in the rehearsal, Sarah has always kept Double Sextette an enjoyable activity.

SING A SONG

One of Bedford High School's tight vocal groups is the madrigal. This group meets every other day, and is accompanied on the piano by Andrea Lund. These students are able to perform a wide range of musical styles from many time periods. The madrigal also performs some numbers a capella, as well as in Latin. The double sextette, a group of sixteen girls, is one of the only musical ensembles at the high school that performs outside of school.

SWEET SOUNDS

Wind Ensemble is strong commitment to music and requires a lot from the student. One must audition and pending acceptance, they may become a member. Once accepted, they are required to participate in all concerts, the marching band, parades, and other musical activities. If the musician is of high caliber, then he or she must participate in the Orchestra and audition for the Jazz Ensemble. All of the activities take a great deal of individual preparation but the students only receive credits for Wind. The students must be prepared to be spontaneously called on to play certain sections. It is a course that demands a lot more talent and commitment than the students realize. Despite all the hard work, the kids still feel that Wind is one of the best activities that the school has to offer.

FEEL THE RHYTHM

The BHS Jazz Ensemble is comprised of twenty-three members from the Wind Ensemble. The group, which is under the direction of Mr. Paul K. Smith, usually meets once a week during school and every Friday at 2:30. The band's repertoire include blues, big band, jazz, contemporary, and fusion. The band performs at both the winter and spring concert, as well as Concert on the Green and the Hall of Fame ceremonies. Through the course of a year, the members learn about the various basics of jazz, such as the twelve bar blues, as well as the history and trivial facts of jazz greats. The group also gives it's members the opportunity to write solos and perform them in front of their peers.

The atmosphere during jazz is much more relaxed than the more serious wind ensemble rehearsals. However, the members work extra hard on getting the over-all group unison that is so important in a jazz ensemble.

If there is one person who truly exemplifies the definition of dedication it would be Raj Sundra. Raj is a four year veteran of the Wind-Jazz Ensemble, Marching Band, and three veteran of the Orchestra. He has played a variety of instruments from clarinet to soprano sax to alto sax depending on what group he is devoting his time to. Being a clarinet section leader for the past two years, Raj has had many opportunities to share his musical talent among his peers. Most afternoons one can find Raj with his instrument practicing fingerings, scales, and drills with the main objective to improve his playing ability. This year Raj was rewarded with an acceptance to the Northeast District Band. Here he could share his music talent with other accomplished musicians. No matter how difficult the piece, Raj is always ready to meet the challenge with great intensity.

SOUND OF MUSIC

Concert band is the largest instrumental group in the high school. Meeting every other day throughout the school year, this group is conducted by Mr. Paul K. Smith. The group plays a wide range of music, from marches to musical suites which are rated highly in the music circles. Being a member requires its members to perform twice a year, once during the winter concert and once in the Spring Concert. It gives the students the opportunity to join the Marching Band as well as play at Concert on the Green, Graduation, and in the Memorial Day Parade.

STRICTLY INSTRUMENTAL

The BHS string orchestra meets every other day during period E. In the weeks before the two concerts, in which the orchestra performs, members of the Wind Ensemble join the violins, viola, cello, and string bass to form the full orchestra.

Led for the seventh year by Mr. Richard Hager, the orchestra presents a variety of pieces each year, as well as the traditional songs. At the annual spring concert, when the musicians perform without the BHS choir, Mr. Hager conducts the orchestra in more challenging works that demonstrate the groups excellence and the long hours of rehearsal.

This year, five accomplished members of the orchestra were accepted into the 1984-1985 Northeast District Orchestra and Band. Seniors Judy Ciampa (violin), Raj Sundra (clarinet), Stacey Swider (bassoon), Donald Woodford (baritone), and sophomore Peter Corea (bass) were selected from the hundreds of instrumentalists who auditioned, and performed in the January 12 District concert.

The concertmaster of an orchestra is the musician who is assigned the first chair of the first violin section. If there is a solo violin passage in the music, this passage will be also be played by the concertmaster. The concertmaster will also be asked on occasion to conduct a "sectional rehearsal"; that is, work with a section of the orchestra on a particular passage of difficulty. Therefore, it is the concertmaster's responsibility to know the music cold and understand how to go about teaching the music to the group.

Riye Yukawa has been the concertmaster of the Bedford High School Orchestra for three years, and, as such, has been a strong leader for the orchestra. She studies violin privately, has performed with the Grace Chapel Orchestra, and has performed as a member of the Northeastern District Orchestra and the Massachusetts All-State Orchestra.

Marching Band

Even with many changes, the BHS Superband continued to astonish football fans during the 1984 football season. Many of these changes were initiated by new band director Paul Smith. Mr. Smith introduced the band to a new style, and he brought the band to the Abington Band Jamboree where they placed second out of five in their division (fifty members or less). Some of the season's selections included "Crown Imperial", "Mirada", "Maniac", "The Battle Hymn of the Republic", and "The William Tell Overture" complete with the masked man and his trusty steed. One thing that didn't change was the band's never-ending spirit and enthusiasm which they showed both in the stands and on the field. "They looked good, they looked fine, and they really blew our minds. UGH."

2. Looks like the band took a McDonalds run!
3. Mandy Telford smiles in delight after finishing a song.

3. Carl Theobald intently watches the game as his trombone rests.
4. Mr. Smith: I don't believe it... they actually did something right.

Al Kenney was invaluable to this year's Marching Band. Being a dedicated musician was only half of what he offered. In a marching band, spirit, pride, and enthusiasm are ingredients which are as important as the musical element. Al possesses an abundance of these qualities but also he was the catalyst for inciting them in the rest of the band, whether leading the group in a cheer (who will ever forget him leading, "Boogie down that line, UNH! it's touchdown time!") or psyching the band up with his "falling hat" routine. Most important is Al's contribution in making band not just a class, but a team and a family. His future plans include college, majoring in business and keeping up his interest in music.

"Here we are just comin' right at you singin DO WA DITTY DITTY DUM DITTY DO Betcha wonderin' what were gonna do SINGING DO WA DITTY DITTY DUM DITTY DO We look good we look fine Now were gonna blow your mind, UGH!"

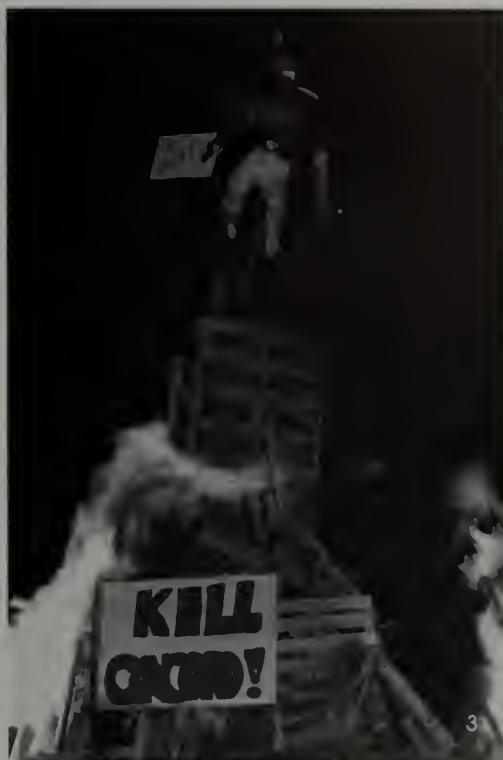

Majorettes

This year the majorette squad had a maximum of one year's experience. Due to the youth of the girls, the first few games were very trying for the squad and the band. But a combined effort among all made the girls shine in such selections as "On Broadway," "Celebration," "Eye of the Tiger," and "Five-Foot-Two." Paul Smith, the new band director, did an excellent job of helping throughout the season. A unique quality about the squad is their versatility. They function as a drill team, flag bearers, and dancers. Creative and entertaining, they sparkled in all of their routines. Led by co-captains Chelby Blodgett and Carol McClatchey, the squad made up each of their routines as well as costumes for one of the numbers. Although young and relatively inexperienced, the nine member squad banded together to add zest to the football season.

Pep Rally

It wasn't just the heat from the towering bonfire that warmed that cold night (11/21/84). First, the band warmed up their instruments and then heated up the crowd with football tunes as they marched from the Purity shopping center to the Center School tennis courts. Not far behind were the football team members cheering from atop a fire engine. Surrounding the small chain were majorettes, cheerleaders, and police cars completing the small parade. At the tennis courts announcers pepped the crowd, mothers' hearts were warmed with corsages from their football playing sons, and the cheerleaders sparked the audience with an entertaining routine. One could also see the Bedford Buccaneer and turkey jumping enthusiastically through the crowd. By 7:30 it was time for everyone to move over to the soccer backstop and watch the captains of the football team light a fire, which would quickly engulf the destined Concord Patriot hanging limply on top. Amidst cheers from the crowd and songs from the band, the fire roared into the night. Long after the last flame sparked, the enthusiasm, hopes, and memories still lingered on.

COMMITTEES

Aside from academics and sports, Bedford High has numerous committees in which the students may participate. Such committees as the Legislative Committee, Citizenship Committee, and Student Advisory Committee offer great diversification in the school. The Legislative Committee serves as a sounding board in which students can confront people with school-related problems. The Citizenship Committee recognizes students throughout the high school for strong leadership in community affairs, while the Student Advisory Committee represents the students at the School Committee meetings. All of these committees help students express their views to the administrators of the school.

CLUBS

The Drama Club, Debating Club, and Math League, like the committees, serve as an integral part of Bedford High. Each of these three organizations is vastly different in what they entail yet all there share some common ground. They, like any other extracurricular activity, provide an organized method of having fun and they provide an important outlet for students. All clubs are available to all grades and they provide a diversification from sports.

The American Field Service club is the group that plans the activities for the AFS student(s). Students come from different countries to learn about the American culture. Through the years the AFS club at Bedford has always been very successful. Unfortunately the club did not find a family early enough last year to host an AFS student. However the fun activities have continued and a search is being conducted to find a family to host a student for next year.

This year the new advisor, Mrs. Raines, has been very helpful. She has helped organize the club to get more students involved. Also helping were the five club officers: Christine Foerst, president, Louise O'Hara and Uli Reinisch, co-vice presidents, Cheryl Millman, secretary, and Noelle Marcotte, treasurer.

This year AFS had a popcorn sale at football games where a lot of the members participated. Also the International Weekend was held December 7-9. This is an event that brings AFS students staying in the surrounding towns to join in the AFS activities with the Bedford club members for the weekend.

NHS

The Bedford High School chapter of National Honor Society is an organization of upperclassmen selected on the basis of scholarship, character, community service, and leadership.

The main function of NHS is as a community service group. An example of these services is the selling of refreshments to those taking adult education courses at BHS. With the profits from this activity, the NHS sponsors an orphan. Another of the community services NHS provides is to work in the American Heart Association's annual phon-a-thon. This involves calling companies and residents in Bedford requesting donations to benefit the research of heart disease.

This year NHS has done something which it has not done in the past years. The organization held the annual induction ceremonies for new members in December instead of May. The reason for the early induction was to allow qualified seniors to list National Honor Society on their credentials for college applications. The early induction also increases the number of students in the society thus making it possible for the organization to serve their commitments more efficiently. NHS provides a way for students to be a contributing part of our society.

T ELE-MEDIA

Back in 1976 Tele-Media was created by the successful talents of three people: Jim Shea, John Rennie, and Ron Massa. To this day the group has remained together and is stronger as a club than ever before.

In the summer of 1984, Adams-Russell Cablevision began to execute its plans to install a cable television facility in the high school. This provided Tele-Media with a great opportunity to give the school and now the community of Bedford as well, better quality programming in all aspects of television production.

With the new members of the club that joined in December of last year, training and certification on the new equipment has begun and new positions have been initiated. Nathan Sears, Matthew Urquhart and David DiNisco are the first official programming directors of Tele-Media. Together their task is, with input from the other members, to decide on any issues that might arise in the group, and to vote on which programs will be produced at Tele-Media for broadcasting.

It has been a year of change at Tele-Media with the new studio and new positions opened. These changes however are all for the better. In the past Tele-Media has produced such successful programs as Starting Point, Ask the Principal, BHS Today, and Forum. And with the new developments Tele-Media will bring the viewing audience new types of programs from comedy series to documentaries to the continuation of a morning announcements show.

A new era has been ushered in and the club will continue to be a strong aspect of Bedford High School for many years to come.

WRITERS

Bedford High School saw a new name this fall as it got its first look at its newspaper. Last year's prototype Emit was changed to this year's Blue News. Under the direction of senior co-editors and publishers Stacey Swider and John Spencer, as well as faculty advisor Mr. Desilets, the paper brought a variety of topics to the student body. Articles ranged from the famine in Ethiopia to the Doug Flutie craze, as well as monthly entertainment, advice, and record review columns. Contributors to the paper were seniors Lonnie Murray, Jeanette Moreau, Eric Benson, Julie Tateosian, Lynne Telford, and Brendan Gaul, as well as sophomore Adam Erlich.

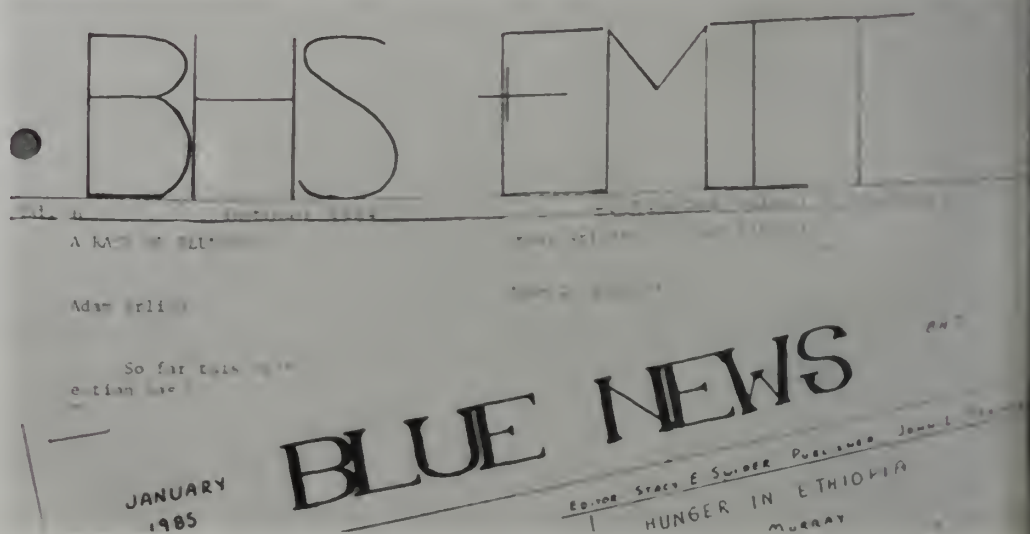

Parallax is the award-winning literary magazine of Bedford High School. Published every spring, the magazine is a collection of poetry, prose, and artwork done by members of the student body. Led by advisor Mr. Desilets, the intimate staff works closely to produce notable works. This past year, two of the contributors, Wendy Utley and Brendan Gaul, were awarded special recognition for their poetry.

REPS

For one week last June, Lynne Telford was a citizen at the American Legion Auxiliary's Girls' State. The purpose of this event was to teach it's participants, all girls, not only how government is run on the local, state and national level, but also to let them run a government for a day. Every citizen was put into either the National or Federal party and was given the opportunity to run for positions ranging from dog catcher to governor. In order to obtain an office, one had to give speeches in front of members of both her own city, as well as her party. After all of the positions had been filled, the House and Senate met to discuss numerous bills which had been sent in earlier by citizens of Girl's State. That night, the governor and her council met to veto or pass the bills.

Another program similar to Girls' State is Student Government Day. This activity elects a representative to participate in State Government Affairs for a day. Bedford High this year elected Al Kenney to represent the school in this statewide program. The students are matched up with a legislator and they perform their duty on a chosen day. A five day seminar program is required in which the students visit the state, research their candidate, make up bills and perform mock sessions.

Seniors Snow Juniors

Practice makes perfect and the senior girls sure proved it at the annual Powder-Puff football game. After only four short weeks of practice, both teams came together in an intensely competitive clash of emotions and bodies. Soon after the game started, one could sense the rivalry that built up in the weeks prior to the game, especially after the juniors beat the seniors in a scrimmage. Quickly it became apparent that seniors would dominate; this proved true as the juniors were crushed by a score of 28-0. Both teams were provided with excellent coaching. The experience and devotion of Rob Jacobson, Tim Peucker, John Bellino, and Eric Benson brought about an awesome victory. The game would not have been complete without the spirit and enthusiasm provided by the senior's cheerleaders, Rob Kelnhofer and Doug Blair.

T OURNAMENT OF PLAYS

Comedies ruled the evening at the annual Tournament of Plays Competition presented by the Drama Club on Friday November 2, 1984 at the BHS auditorium. One of the comedies - "Antic Spring" - captured the Best Production award and its director, senior Joanne Delaney, was named Best Student Director by the panel of judges.

Like the Musical, the Tournament of Plays has become something of an annual tradition at BHS. The Tournament is a competition wherein each of the four classes presents a one-act play, to run no longer than 40 minutes. Each play is then viewed by a panel of judges, with awards given for Best Actor & Actress, Best Supporting Actor & Actress, Best Newcomer, and Best Student Director.

Because of the ensemble nature of the plays this year, two Best Performances by an Actor and Actress were given out in place of the Best Supporting categories. Senior Mike Sullivan and sophomore Jim Larkin won Best Actor, while sophomore Lynda Blair and senior Sarah Robinson were the recipients on the distaff side. Freshman Jessica Meyers was named Best Newcomer of the tournament.

WHAT A NIGHT!

The American Legion Hall came alive on December 23, 1984 as it held Bedford High School's Jr.-Sr. Semi Formal. Hosted by the junior and senior class, the dance offered a relaxing atmosphere to those who were ready for the Christmas break. After going out to dinner at a nearby restaurant or a date's house, couples flocked to the hall. People easily took to the floor to dance the night away to music provided by a D.J.

The attire for the evening was varied. Girls wore dresses from the newest dropped waist style to the more old-fashioned Gunny Sacks. The guys, on the other hand, stuck to the more traditional suit and narrow tie, with a few wearing vests and bow ties. Even senior class advisor Mr. Patuleia and the sophomore refreshment hostesses were all spiffed up.

How does the name Egbert van Horn grab you? That is the name of the villain in the old-fashioned melodrama "Curse You, Jack Dalton!" performed by the BHS Drama Club on January 22.

Under the direction of Elaine Giddis, the cast treated the audience to a hilarious show. The spectators that night were outgoing and enthusiastic, which was great because an old-fashioned melodrama needs lots of audience participation.

The play is about the forces of good: our manly hero "Jack Dalton", and the forces of evil: "Egbert van Horn" (alias Hector Harcourt). The evil villain threatens to have our heroine "Bertha Blair" committed to an insane asylum if she does not run away with him. But don't despair folks, there is still a sign of hope. Our manly hero could overthrow this fiend, or maybe he could be demolished by this treacherous, deep-eyed villain.

The timing of the actors that night was perfect, and in order of appearance they were: Sharon Wachsler (Mrs. Dalton), Joanne McDonough (Anna Alvarado), Cristina Allan (Bertha Blair), Michael Rosenberg (Jack Dalton), Carl Theobald (Egbert van Horn), Jim Larkin (Richard Blair), and Jackie Weicker as (Eloise Dalton).

GUYS, GUYS, GUYS . . . GIRLS, GIRLS, GIRLS . . .

One of the most popular activities in high school is watching. Television, fashion trends, and music videos have always been favorites, but by far the ultimate subjects to watch are members of the opposite sex. Guys constantly check out girls and vice versa. Informal polls around BHS revealed that girls and guys usually gaze at the same qualities in each other. Nice hair, clothes, and an attractive face seem to be what instantly get the attention of both sexes.

BHS students also had their eyes other places than on their peers at school. This year, like many years, fantasies flourished among much of the female population. Teen idols such as John Stamos, Mel Gibson, Matt Dillon, and Tom Cruise had their pictures pinned to a great number of lockers belonging to besotted teenagers. On the other hand, select pages torn out of the swimsuit issue of Sports Illustrated were proudly showcased next to snapshots of Christie Brinkley and other cover girls in many lockers belonging to male students.

SIGNUM STAFF

The 1985 yearbook staff has been tremendous despite its lack of size. The few dedicated members that did help were incredible. The editors: Rob Jacobson, Cheryl Knell, Al Kenney, Noelle Marcotte, Louise O'Hara and Lynne Telford all did tremendous amounts of work and you should all be proud. And Kerri Burke, believe me you were never forgotten! Despite the fact you're technically not an editor, your work was invaluable and all of us "big shots" really appreciate it.

Signum, Volume II has been the most costly, most graphic, most difficult book ever done at BHS. Accomplishing such a feat took hundreds of hours and thousands of hard earned dollars. Without our publishing representative, John Neister, none of the complexity of this book would have been possible. John, your ideas and your imaginative sense gave all of us editors inspiration. Thank-you!

Mrs. Hovsepian . . . what a gal! If you decide to retire from yearbook at the end of this year, I'm glad you waited (although you know you'll never quit yearbook). And my fellow students, believe me, English teachers are human too! They gossip more than freshman girls! But not to slander just English teachers, foreign language teachers are pretty good gossipers themselves. Mrs. Raines . . . you're just a wild and crazy girl!

And to the rest of my meager staff, the odds and ends writers, the copier overers, thanks for the help you gave. And to everyone who had any part in this book, "You're all soft!"

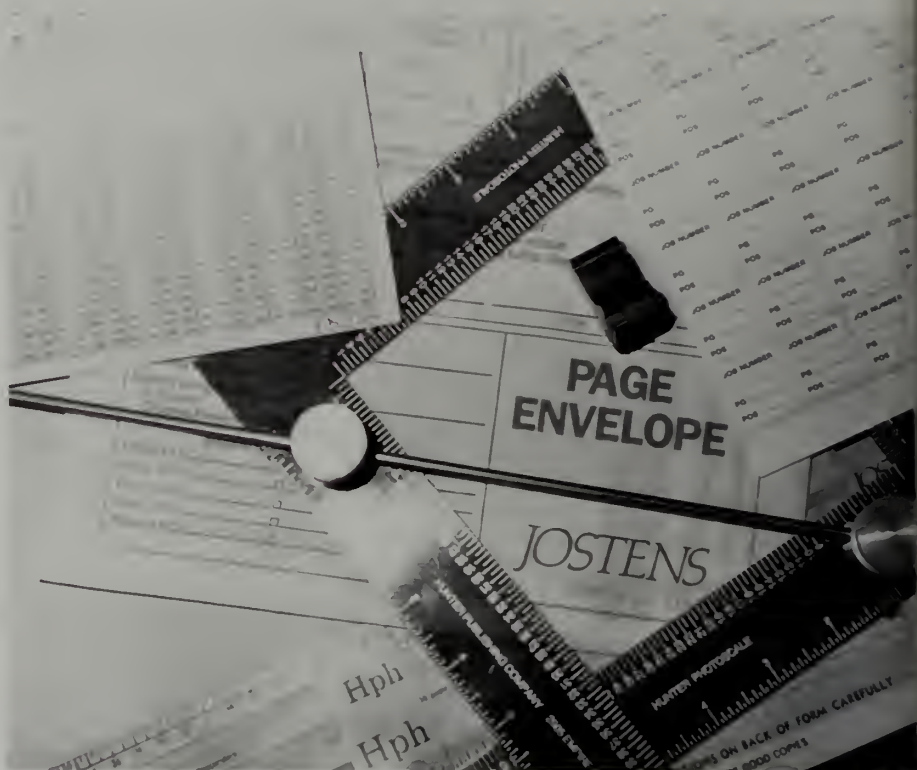

— Scott

CREATING THE YEARBOOK

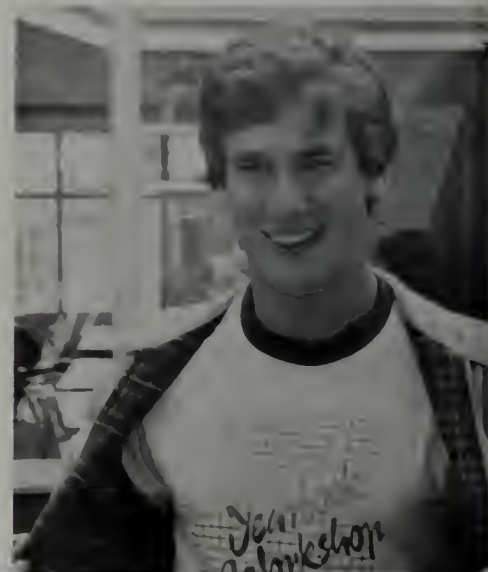

Contrary to popular belief, the yearbook does not begin production in the fall of each year. This year's book was started in the preceeding spring with meetings to decide on a theme and the senior class picture. Throughout the summer, seniors had their individual pictures taken at Burlington Studios. Also, the past summer Al Kenney, Noelle Marcotte, Louise O'Hara, Scott Sevier and Lynne Telford spent three days at Bryant College in Rhode Island participating in Josten's Yearbook Workshop.

During the three days, each of the editors went to workshops dealing with the originating of lay-outs, copy preparation, picture taking, color and other areas that are needed to develop a successful yearbook. The group met with a professional artist to design the cover and divider sheets, as well as with our representative to design ideas in which to design the our theme. The editors also did several practice lay-outs and copy, along with a layout of the color section. When the editors weren't in a class or doing a layout, there were plenty of people to meet, toga parties, volleyball games, and places to see.

Going to the workshop gave this year's staff a distinct advantage, so that when yearbook started up again in September, the staff knew what they wanted to do as well as many of the basics needed to do it.

- 1) Tools of the trade.
- 2) Guidelines for the yearbooker.

COMMUNITY

What yearbook could exist without the inevitable advertisements? Even though it may seem like a mundane section in 1985, as we get older we will look back at the good wishes from local stores and companies with fond remembrance of the community surrounding BHS.

This year the advertisement section in the yearbook will be a little more personal than in the past. Signum has given parents and students opportunities to give the Class of 1985 special wishes for success in the future in the form of advertisements. Buy-a-lines, from those students who wanted to express a few thoughts to friends, also appear in this section. Because the people to whom they are addressed are the only ones who are able to decipher many of the buy-a lines, they are one of the most interesting sections of the yearbook. The Community section this year, therefore, enables graduates to recall both the Bedford community and their friends and family.

Dear Chris:

You have navigated the mazes & gotten past the monsters & now the big adventure begins. You are well armed & with you goal in front of you. Refer to it often & it will keep you on the track. No life is without trials but a concrete goal makes decisions easier along the way. You are the master of your destiny.

RETIREMENT OR HEALTH CARE

THERE IS A NEW OPTION IN MASSACHUSETTS

Consider the all-new Continuing Care Retirement Community of

Carleton-Willard Village

Nursing care needs are met in a residential village where privacy and individuality are respected. A professional staff is ready to meet your every need in skilled nursing, intermediate nursing, or rest home facilities.

Retirement living is available in town houses and apartments for those couples and individuals who wish to live life to its fullest, relieved of the burdens of day-to-day living.

Maureen:

Nature's first green is gold,
Her hardest hue to hold.
Her early leaf's a flower;
But only so an hour.
Then leaf subsides to leaf.
So Eden sank to grief.
So dawn goes down today.
Nothing gold can stay.

Chris - What is to become of you? We've watched you age and mature as a connoisseur would a fine wine or cheese. Now you're off to seek fame and fortune and live a life of leisure (in that asmosphere of diligence fondly referred to as college). But on that occasion when you return to the world of reluctant reality known as home, you will make your bed, do the laundry, wash your dishes, vacuum the house, etc., etc., etc.

We love you. Good luck,
Mom and Dad

SUMMATION OF A YEAR

Sum of our parts is a unique theme that applies to a unique student body. This student body is coming to the end of another year. It has been a year filled with the usual triumphs and heartaches, a year of new rules and procedures and yet a year that ranks among the best. For seniors especially the year's final day and the graduating ceremony will bring about new emotions and good-byes. The phrase "friends forever" will likely fall victim to time and its ravages: a part of each and every one of us is closing with that final bell.

Whatever goals or achievements each and every one of us aspires to, we all have the common bond of Bedford High School. That bond will never leave us and may it always guide us and serve us as a gift for inspiration. This unity is something we all share and benefit from - for we, the students of BHS, are the sum of our parts.

- 1) Karen Zolnay.
